How would you illustrate life? How would you draw it or paint it? What is life to you? This was an assignment from my English teacher from senior year of high school. I drew a river because life is a journey. Along the way we encounter the dark and ominous wilderness, but soon we come to the cities of light that are the communities that support us along our way.

Coming to CSB/SJU and joining a Journey Group has emphasized to me that I truly am a part of a community, life is truly a journey and we are here to support one another. I love going to Journey Group and eating a meal without a cafeteria tray. I love the family atmosphere of sitting around a circular table talking about life. I love the unique perspective that each woman shares and I love the ardor with which she shares it.

This year the CSB sophomore t-shirt says, “We’re back.” We are back amidst the extreme homework, sports, work and trying to make time for fun. The intense schedule can be overwhelming. The journey is not always easy, but through it all, we grow together.

Overall, it’s not about the place our Journey Group has found to meet (that secret suite on the third floor of the Main). It’s not about knowing what to say when we’re there. What I have gained from Journey Group is peace in the Silence. Psalm 46:10 says, “Be still and know that I am God.” Journey Group has taught me to take the time to be silent, and remember that God is everywhere.

Thank you for that; it is a gift.
