Teaching opportunity for Psychology Majors

February 26

Mikaela Dunn

or

Deadline

Application Deadline

Teaching Practicum 2010

February 26

assignments for these labs. In developing lesson plans and grade psychology students, and you groups of introductory psychology lab courses to small 70

During this experience you will fellowship students? If so, you for psychology with your passion for psychology? Do JUNIOR PSYCHOLOGY

———

Psychology Lab Teaching

fellow Bennies and Johnnies, experience; a great opportunity about the program: senior psychology majors, and psychology faculty, fellow be able to interact with you in the future. You will also way, you are sure to learn many psychology major and along the experience fulfills the senior benefits to being a TI. This together to develop strong course, in which you will work

The Freudian Slip

CARL S. JUNG, Department of Psychology

Psychology students receive Jackson fellowship

February, 2010

by: Jeff Lesmeister

revised 2/10

Hindsight

Attribution Errorist

Jeff Lesmeister

Staff

February, 2010

Course Sign Up

Teaching Practicum 2010

20/10 hindsight

—

Do you want to share your love of psychology with your fellow students? If so, you may be interested in participating in the Teaching Practicum (TI) program. This program is designed to give psychology majors the opportunity to gain practical experience in teaching psychology courses.

In this program, you will work with a faculty member to develop and teach an introductory psychology lab course. You will be responsible for creating lesson plans, teaching the course, and grading assignments. This experience will provide you with valuable teaching skills and knowledge of psychology.

To be eligible for the TI program, you must be a psychology major and have completed at least one year of psychology coursework. You must also have a strong commitment to teaching and a desire to share your passion for psychology with others.

If you are interested in participating in the TI program, please submit a cover letter and resume to your psychology advisor by February 26. The application deadline is February 26, 2010.

The Jackson Fellows program

The Jackson Fellows program is an exciting opportunity for psychology majors to gain practical experience in the field of psychology. This program provides psychology majors with the opportunity to work with top students and campus leaders in different areas including social development and leadership.

Through the Jackson Fellows program, you will be able to work with students who are passionate about improving community life this summer. You will also be able to work with students who are interested in civic engagement and development.

The Jackson Fellows program is open to all psychology majors who have completed at least one year of psychology coursework. To be eligible for the program, you must have a strong commitment to community service and public policy.

If you are interested in participating in the Jackson Fellows program, please submit a cover letter and resume to your psychology advisor by February 26. The application deadline is February 26, 2010.