COURSE DESCRIPTIONS  (Changes listed in red)

COLG 1058-01A: Reading Group: Louise Erdrich
Molly Ewing
Award-winning author Louise Erdrich will be visiting campus in February 2010. In preparation for her visit and formal presentation/reading on 19 February, we will read and discuss her novel, The Last Report on the Miracles at Little No Horse, a finalist for the National Book Award in 2001, which deals directly with Erdrich’s themes for her conversation with us in February: the importance of creativity in our lives and communities, especially as related to cultural identity and the intersection of Ojibwa and European cultures.

ETHS 390-11A: Ethics Common Seminar: Reading for Life
Anthony Cunningham
Everyone loves a good story, but great stories can provide us with more than mere entertainment. Stories can provide rich character portraits that can help reveal the subtleties and nuances of what it means to live well and responsibly. In this course we’ll use novels and films to address Socrates’ most basic ethical questions, "How should one live?" and "What sort of person should I be?" We’ll do so by attending to all the concrete, particular details of real-life and fictional characters thoroughly imbued in the "business of living." Reading well offers the possibility of vicarious experience and ultimately, ethical insight. Some of our readings may include: Arthur Miller’s The Crucible, Nick Hornby’s How To Be Good, Kazuo Ishiguro’s The Remains of the Day, Zora Neale Hurston’s Their Eyes Were Watching God, Toni Morrison’s Beloved, Charles Frazier’s Cold Mountain, and Doris Lessing’s The Good Terrorist.

GERM 345-01A: Novels/Novellen/Stories/Tales: The Structures of German Nationalism
Andreas Kyrayakis
This class examines how German nationalism is constructed and invoked in diverse texts from 19th and early 20th century German literature and intellectual thought. The aim of the course is to deepen our understanding of the German mind. Various critical theories will be used to examine the role of narrative strategies and issues contained in Romanticism, Naturalism, German dualism, religion, domesticity, and nature, in the formation of a German "national" identity. Our analysis will be based on salient texts and excerpts from Lou Andreas-Salome, Dietrich Bonhoeffer, Sigmund Freud, J.W. Goethe, Friedrich Hegel, Karl Marx, Friedrich Nietzsche, Franz Kafka, Adolf Hitler, Konrad Lorenz, Thomas Mann, and Hermann Hesse.

GWST 381-01A: Sex & Gender in Global Perspectives
Christina Hennessy
This is an interdisciplinary course that explores the role of gender, in a cross-cultural context. It examines how we understand and think about gender and the different theories on gender from a biological, psychological, sociological, and anthropological perspective. The breadth of the topics covered encourages comparative analysis of various themes related to gender such as education, work, sexuality, power, health and environmental issues. The course is also designed to explore worldwide women’s movements and achievements, cross cultural conceptions of masculinity, and the GLBT human rights movements around the world.

HONR 2708-01A: Math Exploration (Chaos shouldn’t be in title under course description)
Thomas Sibley

LMUS 409-01A: Applied Composition
Brian Campbell
Individualized coaching in advanced composition of sacred music and music appropriate for liturgical performance. Work in various forms and styles is possible, depending on the needs and interests of individual students. Students should normally have a bachelor’s degree in music or equivalent training and have significant experience in music composition.

PREREQUISITE: permission of the instructor and the liturgical music program director.

MGMT 304-01A: Entrepreneurship
All students admitted to the course will spend significant time (in and out of class) working on a real new venture project. Many different things can qualify as a new venture project (see the list below). During the semester, a new venture project could be at any one of three phases: 1. Planning for a new venture to be launched in the future, 2. Launching a new venture, or 3. Running a new venture that has recently been launched.

About half of the class time will be devoted to working on new venture projects. The other half of class time will be spent covering topics such as: theories of entrepreneurship, entrepreneurial strategy, entrepreneurial finance, marketing for entrepreneurs, and new venture operations.

PREREQUISITE: Policy for admission to Management 304. For spring 2010, the following set of prerequisites:

- Completion of Mgmt 201 (Introduction to Management) or equivalent management experience.
- Submission of a list of possible new venture ideas. The list should be submitted to Paul Marsnik via e-mail by October 30, 2009. Students will be notified about admittance to the class by Nov. 3. Since there are a limited number of spots in the class, the first 25 students who have submitted acceptable list of ideas will be admitted to the class. It is perfectly acceptable to work on a project for the course that is not on the list that you submit.

Listed below are a few examples of new venture projects from recent Entrepreneurship classes:

- Xcellerate volleyball camps: A business that provides volleyball camps for girls age 14-18 in rural Nebraska
COURSE DESCRIPTIONS cont’d
(Changes listed in red)

- CSB/SJU Yearbook on CD.
- A business providing consulting to small businesses in the area of web page design and/or technology assistance
- A business plan for an ice cream shop in St. Joe
- Planning and implementation of Covenant Circle, a senior giving program at CSB.
- A business plan for Kamelian Nailz, a nail polish that changes colors
- Planning and implementation of a snowmobile race in northwestern Minnesota.
- Business plan for a Dim Sum Restaurant
- Taking over the SIFE Book Swap project
- Developing a plan to offer workshops for first year students to develop a portfolio which they could use for job seeking Junior and Senior year

Any questions about the criteria should be directed to Paul Marsnik at pmarsnik@csbsju.edu

NUTR 212-01A: Contemporary Issues: The Food System: From Field to Table
Ramona Robinson-O’Brien

This course examines contemporary food systems issues and invites students to explore associations among a complex set of subsystems within the food system: food production, processing, distribution, marketing, consumption, and waste disposal and/or recycling. We will consider the impacts of these subsystems on human health and nutrition, the environment, communities, and the economy. This course will explore the aspects associated with the dominant conventional food system and emerging food system alternatives.

PREREQUISITE: None

NUTR 260A-01A: Culinology of French Cuisine
Bernadette Elhard

Structure of the class will combine lecture, discussion, and readings examining the food science behind the essential elements of French cuisine. Culinology®, Culinary Science, combines culinary arts and food science and technology to create safer more wholesome food. Research on food production and preservation will be combined with culinary preparation technique to create appealing food from a taste, texture and visual perspective. Students will also spend time with experiential learning in the food science laboratory applying knowledge previously discussed in the classroom.

PREREQUISITE: NUTR 225
FEE: $40
NOTE: Course includes a laboratory, NUTR 260AL

PCST 368F-01A: Contemporary African Politics
Immanuel Mentan

This course will introduce the student to basic concepts and arguments in the study of contemporary African politics. The course will focus on African countries after independence, though the legacies of the colonial period will also be discussed. The course covers the basic components of African politics, and will focus on countries selected by students. It also will look at topics such as ethnicity, class, religion and gender; civil wars; authoritarianism and democracy; poverty, development, AIDS and human rights.

POLS 348-01A: African Politics
Immanuel Mentan

This course will introduce the student to basic concepts and arguments in the study of contemporary African politics. The course will focus on African countries after independence, though the legacies of the colonial period will also be discussed. The course covers the basic components of African politics, and will focus on countries selected by students. PSYC 309C-01A: Cross-Cultural Psychology
Linda Tennison

SSOT 468-01A: Women in the Old Testament—WEB course
Irene Nowell

Women, both named and nameless, have played a significant role throughout the history of God’s people. After a consideration of the techniques and effects of storytelling, we will study the stories of women throughout the Old Testament, paying particular attention to their experience and influence. We will also consider the later interpretation of these stories and probe their significance for faithful people today.

THEO 339A-01A: Discernment and Christian Decision Making
Kathleen Langer

This course introduces participants to the teachings on discernment found within the Christian tradition. The topic of discernment will be considered both as a way of life and as a specific process for vocational decision-making. Participants will apply discernment principles in differing contexts through course assignments and class activities such as discussion of case studies and reflection on personal experiences.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS cont’d

THEO 349C-01A: Theology, Biomedical and Healthcare Ethics
Kathryn Cox
This course will examine the role of faith in addressing a variety of moral issues raised by the advancement of medical science and technology and by ongoing research to cure diseases. The course will survey issues such as stem cell research, reproductive technologies, health care reform, the patient-physician relationship, euthanasia, beginning and end of life questions and HIV/AIDS. Each issue will be explored from the perspectives of theology, medicine, and other pertinent disciplines, such as psychology. Theological themes will be looked at to see what theology and faith offer in addressing the variety of moral issues. These themes include theological anthropology (how we understand the human person), views on God, sin, grace, the communal nature of morality, the Resurrection (as a framework to discuss what it means to die a good death), as well as Catholic social teaching and the Christian obligation to care for the poor and vulnerable.

COMMON CURRICULUM ADDITIONS

Common Curriculum Requirements clarification (from pg 23 of class schedule):
