It bears repeating: every gift matters.

It matters to preserve the small class sizes, experiential learning opportunities and the extraordinary individual attention — all hallmarks of the Bennie experience.

It matters for the collegiate rankings that elicit national and international attention and funding. It would only take 154 donors to increase our participation percentage by one point, and given that Saint Ben’s is in a four-way tie with other colleges — that could be enough to move us ahead.

It matters for the resumes of every woman who has been here, every woman who is here now and every woman who will be here in the future.

It matters because a contribution to the Saint Ben’s annual giving program is an investment. It’s an investment with tremendous potential and high rates of return. That’s because the investment is in Bennies — Bennies who will see the world, learn about it, then change it. Bennies who will pay it forward and open doors for the next generation.

“Saint Ben’s only takes up one line on my resume, but it speaks volumes. In one name, it tells clients about my depth and breadth of experiences and expertise — and even about my character. I want that name to be as valuable as the experience was for me. That’s why I give.”

You’re an investor in Saint Ben’s. Here’s why your stock’s looking up:

- 95% of seniors rate the overall quality of their academic experience as good or excellent.
- MORE THAN 90% of seniors identify a faculty member as a mentor or role model.
- 9 IN 10 students say their academic major prepared them well for their career or graduate school.
- 81% The graduation rate, which is higher than the national average for women.

Turning dollars into dreams

- $25 pays for a student to fulfill a fine arts experience credit by attending a performance on campus.
- $300 pays for the real-world experience of providing nutritious meals at a community site as part of a dietetics class.
- $200 pays for a chair in a computer science classroom.
- $1,000 pays for a student to attend a national conference on student engagement in community service.
- $5,000 pays for a student’s full-time summer internship at a Minnesota nonprofit.

Now Madison’s sister, Ali, is here, too. That’s two lives forever changed because of the generosity of Bennies who went before them.
