¹These slides, along with the black and white photo images found on the Minnesota Historical Society’s online Visual Resources Database, make up the original bulk of the New Deal mural images for my analysis. The contents of this set are significant, for, though they are labeled as WPA Murals by MHS, seven of the twelve images are Treasury Section murals. This shows the all too common error of generalization regarding these mural programs. See note 4 for more details regarding this mislabeling.

^2This list is originally found in an appendix of Marlene Park and Gerald E. Markowitz’s Democratic Vistas: Post Offices and Public Art in the New Deal (Philadelphia: Temple University Press, 1984), p. 215-216. Barbara Melosh updated the same list with current location information and included it in the back of her book Engendering Culture: Manhood and Womanhood in the New Deal (Washington, D.C.: Smithsonian Institution, 1991), p. 245-246. For this project, I excluded a few entries of artwork that are not mural painting (i.e. wood and plaster relief and a smaller, easel-size painting).

^3The abbreviation o/c stands for oil on canvas.

^4This mural, listed with the Treasury Section murals in both Melosh and Park and Markowitz, was actually created through a separate New Deal art program, the Treasury Relief Art Project, or TRAP. This project was organized through the Treasury Department, but funded through a grant from the WPA. The St. Cloud Post Office mural is also a product of the TRAP program, though it was listed with the Treasury Section murals as well. An article written by the artist identifies it as a TRAP mural. See David Granahan, “The St. Cloud Mural,” Crossings (Stearns County Historical Society, Vol 14. No 2. Apr/May 1989), 2-3 & 11.

+Saint Paul, North Saint Paul Branch – Donald Humphrey 1941, tempera

*Saint Paul, White Bear Lake Branch – Nellie G. Best 1940, tempera

Wayzata – Ruth Grotenrath 1947, tempera

*Windom – Charles W. Thwaites 1943, tempera (now Historical Society)

Though the original list states this title as simply Logging, a more detailed chronology of Lucia Wiley’s works states the full title as Early Logging at Koochiching Falls. This chronology is on a website (www.muralist.org) organized by Wiley and her estate, providing a good degree of believability for the source.

Euler, 94. Euler quotes this list in her dissertation from a 1940 WPA pamphlet entitled Accomplishments, which summarizes the achievements of the WPA/FAP in all of its different programs. This Accomplishments brochure is not to be confused with Accomplishments: Minnesota Art Projects in the Depression Years, a catalog and essay by Nancy A. Johnson accompanying a 1976 exhibit of Minnesota New Deal art at the Tweed Museum of Art, University of Minnesota, Duluth, or the short brochure, short essay, and art checklist of the same name for the same exhibit. Accomplishments is available in the Papers of Clement Haupers and Clara Gardner Mairs, located at the Minnesota Historical Society in paper form or on microfilm. My notation symbols simply list which images I have viewed and where those images are found.

7The basis of this list still comes from Euler, 94, as quoted from the 1940 Accomplishments brochure. However, in this list, I have included additional information I have found through further research. I have found record and images of additional WPA murals on the Minnesota Historical Society Visual Resources Database (list included at the end) which were either omitted from the original list, or begun after the Accomplishments brochure was published. Furthermore, the list in Euler and Accomplishments includes only location. I have added all additional information from numerous other research sources. My notation symbols simply list which images I have viewed and where they are found.

10Since I have not found an official listing of the Minnesota murals of these programs, this may be an incomplete list. This information came from the following sources: David Granahan, “The St. Cloud Mural,” Crossings (Stearns County Historical Society) (Vol 14, No 2, Apr/May 1989) 2; Clement B. Haupers and Clara Gardner Mairs Papers, Minnesota Historical Society, 1933-1943; Thomas O’Sullivan, “Joint Venture or Testy Alliance?: The Public Works of Art Project in Minnesota, 1933-34,” Great Plains Quarterly (Vol. 9, No. 2, Spring 1989) 94; Park and Markowitz, 215.
